REAAA ANNUAL PICNIC

Save Sunday, July 8 for a bang-up good time at O'Connell's Picnic Grounds, 10300 Lackland Road.

Everyone will be there having lots of fun.
Shorts, slacks and shirt-sleeves will be in order for the day. There'll be beautiful bathers in and out of the pool.-- happy horse-shoers tossing equestrian footwear back and forth at little pegs together with pingpongers, satisfied softballers, badminton boys and girls and armchair athletes.

There'll be facilities for barbecuing; tables to eat on; benches to sit on, and plenty of ice-cold pop (we hope) for a nickel.
Directions on how to get there if you drive your car or if you plan to go by bus will appear in a future issue of SPAN along with other details.

DIDJAKNOWTHAT:

"YOUR BOSS WILL NEVER TELL YOU!.."You might ask your boss from now until doomsday to help you find your flaws...he'd be reluctant to admit you had them"...That is not a quotation from that teller of tall tales, one Baron Munchausen. No, that is what one little filly scampering over the landscape of these United States summed up from visits to numerous and sundry bosses in attempting to ascertain what talents went into making a little gal a "super-sect" and 'twasn't sugar and spice and everything nice but many, many other things. "You save your glamour for evenings...never sulk in your tent...are a clam...are a screen...are truly humble...hide your light (that lies in woman's eyes and lies and lies and lies)...can say 'NO' with a smile (that also goes on a park bench)...are Johnny-on-the-spot"...Praise be to Allah space prohibits a repetition of more of those gifts which more men have dreamed up as adequate embellishments for their offices. While in one breath one is admonished to save their glamour for the p. n. the "super" as depicted leaves little to be desired by the T(irod) B(usiness) M(an) should he be unable to obtain resting space in the front row of the Follios. Lucious lips accentuated by the latest of Liz Arden's most seductive tints, a cute retrouse nose without a freckle, eyebrows plucked to a baseball nine over each sparkling and come-hitherish eye, a manicure - one of those long jobs - done up to match those alluring lips and all this topped off by an up-sweep hair-do and a pompadour on her brow which makes one wish they had shown a full length profile to see if there wasn't a bustle aft to help the damsel maintain her equilibrium. And the "boss", blesshisoverlovin'heart, is shown beaming and beaming with a halo of red resting just above his noble brow when every well balanced secretary knows that 99 and 99/100% of the time that halo takes the form of horns and a tail with a pitch-fork thrown in for good measure. All this adds up to not 100% perfect but 155% and the only day the boss has to come to work is on the 15th of March and for 140% he could get out of that by giving the "super" power of attorney and she could send the darn income tax return while he stayed at home to help with the spring cleaning....Now everyone knows there has been no sun to shine in this man's town for days and days but who should be seen prancing around under the cover of darkness but one K. Shay sporting a huge pair of sun glasses. There are two schools of thought on why she wears them. One that she became so used to the brown-out it is next to impossible for her to stand the noon splendor which illuminates Lindell after 9:30 in the p. n. and the other is that she had her eye on some wild oats and was trying to speak up on 'em behind this disguise. POP, POP, Pop, pop and into a fox-hole (the door-way of F-B Co) popped C. Cunningham and right after her came K. Goodman who had also found out that one cannot put too much faith in this synthetic elastic... can one? While the sun may not have been too plentiful 'round these parts for the past few weeks Maxine Hay and Jean Breville are brightening a couple of corners here and there while Leo Bean and Tom O'Reilly are booming like old Sol himself at the return of the fair ones...ADV. for a small remuneration Margaret Walkor of the Legalers will now transport your luggage to any destination desired....Bring all your problems to our new "Good Will Court" of the M. B. Diviz where "Now Mr. Anthony" is masquerading as Mr. Walsh with a training program. If you don't believe it ask H. Hartogans who has had his most intimate and delicate problems solved by bigger and better examples of what could be worse. Latest word from the literary world says the U. S. Navy has ordered 2400 copies of Samy's book "Power Unleashed" for the ships' libraries.. HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE: 'twas an awful error - that gal who would cavorting go was T. Toobon; Gaynelle Leachman is out to break Finance's (you know who) record - arrives at the office at 7:35 in the a. n.; G. W. Thaxton back with his sample case of brushes; Irleene Lewis' routine to brighten the U.S.O. camp shows this summer - (what summer?); Vern Nelson giving out with Good-night Ladies in the still of the night; Myrtle Borsotti composing poetry to a Roy Rogor's tune though our reporter failed to pass on the poetry; Ruth Phillip planning on tripping to the altar with her Sailor boy come the 23rd; Coastman Bill Willard home after a long time no see to gladden the heart of Eleanor of the Purchasing office; Hugh O'Hara insisting that he's had so many eggs and so few cigs that he now cackles in the a. n. instead of coughs. FLASH: H. Clark of the A. P. Diviz doesn't want it noised about but he declares he has the "hole-in-one" prize right in the bag.
